Professor Kickbusch is Director of the Global Health Programme at the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies in Geneva, Switzerland. She is one of the world’s leading public intellectuals on global health diplomacy and “Health in All Policies,” stressing the importance of integrating policies, programs, and practices across sectors of government and society. She is the author of Policy Innovation for Health (2009) and an important new WHO report, Governance for Health in the 21st Century.

Please join us for this special event, which is jointly sponsored by the European Union Center for Excellence, Master of Public Health Program, Global Health Institute, and Population Health Institute at the University of Madison—Wisconsin.

Light refreshments will be available for those attending the seminar.
