Health Students' Summer Experience in China:

July 17-31, 2012

Led by Jack Jiang

This is a 2-credit opportunity to shadow at hospitals in China for 2 weeks in July with a group of health science students. Medical students from Fudan University in Shanghai will guide and translate, so knowledge of Chinese language is not necessary. If it is your first time traveling to China, this is a great way to get exposed to Chinese culture and health principles from a new perspective.

A majority of the trip will be spent in Shanghai, a metropolis of +19.2 million people on China's Eastern seaboard. It is the largest city in China, known for being a cultural and financial exchange port between the East and West.

On Weekdays:

Shadow at Shuguang Hospital (Shanghai University of Traditional Chinese Medicine affiliated): 3 days

We hope to address topics such as:

- How does Chinese medicine differ from Western medicine? In theory? In practice?
- How are they similar?
- If I am interested, how do I incorporate practices from other modalities into my own practice?
- What are the risks? Benefits? Barriers?

Shadow at a public hospital in Shanghai (Fudan University affiliated) to understand how the average person in China accesses healthcare: 5 days

- Opportunity to see how Western and Eastern medicine are used together
- Huashan Hospital

Shadow at the Huashan Hospital Worldwide Medical Center (Fudan University affiliated) to see how non-native patients access healthcare: 1 day

Shadow at Peking University Third Hospital in Beijing: 2 days

Shadowing will include case discussions, inpatient rounds, and meetings with local physicians and medical students to discuss differences in health education and public health issues.

On nights or weekends, explore Shanghai's cultural sites:

- Old Shanghai streets preserved from the 1920s
- The Bund, a boardwalk along the Huangpu River
- Yuyuan gardens and surrounding Chenghuang Temple (City Gods)
- Delicious Chinese food!

Room & Board:

Students will stay in the Fudan University Medical School dormitories in the Xujiahui district of Shanghai. There is a cafeteria on campus with inexpensive Chinese food, as well as nearby restaurants.

Estimated Costs:

Item	Estimated Cost
Plane ticket from Chicago to Shanghai	$1600? (seasonal)
Room & Board (including food and transportation)	$750, ($50 per day x2 weeks)
Visiting Beijing (plane ticket)	$250
Total:	$2500
